Dear Sirs:

This letter is to express a sincere interest on my part to work for the Central Intelligence Agency as an intelligence officer, case officer or researcher.

STAT

My name is [redacted] Please review the enclosed resume for a sketch of my background and accomplishments. Just over two years ago I graduated from Vanderbilt University with a B.A. in English. Since then I have been principally involved in exploring: in sailing, which culminated in my skippering a sailboat from Greenwich, Connecticut to Eleuthera in the Bahamas; in traveling, by hiking, bicycle and automobile, the East Coast, California and Colorado where I learned to ski; and in teaching school which I enjoy tremendously.

My intention now is to enroll in a graduate program to study and receive a M.A. in Political Science and Economics, hopefully in Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service in Washington, D.C.

The C.I.A., however, does work which is in my field of interest. I am energetic, tri-lingual, intelligent, quick-minded and stable; extremely resourceful and athletic and an experienced traveler having traveled extensively [redacted]

I would appreciate more detailed descriptions of the jobs available and answers to some questions about the nature of the work, the secrecy requirements and C.I.A. lifestyles. I am very interested in arranging an interview and can be contacted at the above address.

Sincerely,
